New Pastoral Area

The diocese of Kilmore has established twelve new Pastoral Areas or Groups of Parishes so that the Church in the diocese will be better prepared to cope with the changing times we are living in and the continuing reduction in the number of priests in the diocese. Our parish of Kilsherdany and Drung is joined in a new Pastoral area with the parishes of Laragh and Drumgoon. As priests get fewer and older this co-operation between priests and people in the will be more important than ever. By the end of February we hope to have set up Pastoral Area Council, that is a committee made up of lay people from each parish and all the priests of the Pastoral Area. The purpose of this Pastoral Area Council is to encourage the three parishes to work together, to share resources and to promote teamwork among the priests and parishioners.
